Romance 101: Using Your Brain to Help Your Heart

Are you tired of going from relationship to relationship like a zombie? Does it feel like no one cares about your needs? Does your significant other always want to fight, not listen? Does it feel like all you're spending too much time with the undead? Well this is the class to shake off the crust and dust and breathe some life back into your social world. This LCOM will combine the ups and downs of relationship communication with the beneficial skills of writing and research in order to put you in the driver seat as you uncover the secret world of everything you have ever wanted to know about love. We will conduct actual research in the area of Interpersonal Communication and learn exactly how to present that data in written form -- and did we mention the zombies?
