

College-Level Examination Program Testing

Earn College Credit. Achieve Your Goals.

Accepted by 2,900 colleges and universities, CLEP® exams let students show their mastery of college-level material in introductory subjects. With a qualifying score on any of the 33 CLEP exams, students can earn three or more credits and place out of the corresponding course.

How do I get credit for CLEP?

Before you take a CLEP exam, review your college's CLEP policy to understand:

- Which CLEP exams your college accepts
- What score is needed to get credit
- How many credits are awarded

When you register for a CLEP exam, request that a copy of your score report be sent to your college. After receiving your score, the college will decide whether or not to award you credit for, or to exempt you from, one or more courses based on its CLEP credit policy.

How do I prepare for a CLEP exam?

CLEP study materials can be found on the CLEP website: clep.collegeboard.org/practice. Access sample test questions, exam topics, and other suggested study resources.
