Thousands of prospective higher ed students interact with Dakota County colleges at National College Fair in Minneapolis

Rosemount, Minn. – Dakota County Technical College (DCTC) and Inver Hills Community College (Inver Hills) were two of hundreds of higher education institutions from across the country that participated in the National College Fair, held October 24-25 at the Minneapolis Convention Center. The event is free for students to attend and presented by the National Association for College Admission Counseling.

At the fair, thousands of students from across the region were able to learn about the programs offered at DCTC and Inver Hills, talk to representatives from each college, and explore what student life is like on each campus.

“When students get a chance to talk to representatives from Dakota County Technical College and Inver Hills Community College, they are often surprised by the wide range of unique and in-demand educational programs that we offer in Dakota County,” said Michael Berndt, interim president of DCTC and Inver Hills. “Thank you to the National Association for College Admission Counseling for hosting such an important event for students in the community to learn about their higher education options.”
